The JP '294 reference relates to an image receiving layer for sublimation transfer recording made of cross linking resins capable of cross linking after recording; the JP '887 reference relates to a recording method using ink accepting layers composed of unhardened or semi-hardened resins that are hardened by energy such as light after imaging; and the DE '484 reference relates to transfer of a picture onto surfaces coated with a hardenable low molecular weight polymer.

5. (X) Applicants also offer the following comments for the Examiner's consideration:

Copies of two European Search Reports are enclosed, the first issued July 29, 1996 and the second on September 26, 1996, which replaces the first one. When Applicants received the first search report, they were of the opinion that the references cited therein, although in category X, were not particularly relevant to the claimed invention, for example, because they relate to "thermal printing" (IPC B41M) technology, to which the present invention does not relate. After a telephone conversation with the EPO, the second search report was issued.

Applicants also note that the GB '520 reference cited on the attached PTO-1449 form corresponds to the FR '607 reference cited in the International search report of record.

Respectfully submitted,

ALASTAIR HUGH SERVANTE ET AL.
